

I am concerned about the published regulations regarding use of facsimile transmissions which will have direct impact on our communications to members of our organization. As published, the regulations will place a substantial and completely unnecessary burden on this organization. "If it isn't broke, don't fix it!" Many of our physician members appreciate notices transmitted by FAX as reminders of upcoming continuing medical education program or new publications available for purchase. We strongly urge retention of the "established business relationship" language.